Tagline (performance in one sentence)	A man and a woman , whom are floated in their routines.

Publicity text :	The characters 'One' and 'Two' are the only friends of one-another. They carry out the same evening ritual of card playing and watching the news on TV in an effort to avoid any real confrontation," press notes state. "'One's' physical deterioration and approaching death forces her to prepare for the inevitable. 'Two' resists this change and his consuming fear of losing "One" leads to an emotional breakdown.
Description of performance: A man and a woman. Both stuck in their everyday routine. The man is a school teacher and lives in an inn with a depressed and numb atmosphere. He stammers and this leads to his lack of self-confidence. The man visits the woman at her house every evening. They chat and drink coffee, and when the night comes, the man gets back to his room at the inn. The woman has gotten used to this routine and everyday waits for the man to visit. But it seems like this evening, she has decided to do something new and fight this depressing routine. She wants to make the man find new friends and acquaintances for himself, but the man is satisfied with this situation and actually enjoys it. They are in love with each other but don't tend to show it. This evening, this everyday routine has to change, but...
